International Collaboration on Advanced Neutron Sources (ICANS XXII)

27–31 March 2017, Saïd Business School, University of Oxford, UK

The 22nd meeting of the International Collaboration on Advanced Neutron Sources (ICANS XXII) will be held on the 27–31 March 2017 in Oxford, England.

ICANS is an informal network of laboratories whose scientists and engineers are involved in developing pulsed neutron sources and accelerator based spallation neutron sources. The collaboration was founded in 1977 as a forum to promote discussions and collaborative work, and to share information on three main topics: accelerators, targets and moderators, and instruments.

After 24 years, the meeting returns to the UK and will be hosted by the ISIS Neutron and Muon Source at the Saïd Business School, University of Oxford with accommodation at St Anne's College.
